UNDERGRADUATE TRENDS

TYPES OF MILL NEEDASED SUPPORT students)

McGill offersseveralprograms to assist students in need, which are available to attribute students in degree programs: entrance and ourse bursaries, student loaths are interest free during studies. Work Study Programas well as Mobility financial aid supplementor exchanges In addition to 5,00 on-line application assessments, more than 130,0 one-on-one aid appointments were conducted by Financial Aid Counselors on both camp Tises number of applications for McGill financial aids creased 2015/16 by 7.5% over the previous year due to a holistic approach to assess need for the entire academic year whenever possible. Over a five year period, the number of application increase by 24%.

The Scholarship and Student Aid Office

In-Course Bursary Program

Forundergraduates in-course bursaries neet the ongoing needs satudents. Entrance bursary recipients tend to return for aid in subsequent years, but there are also students rewithy emerging financial difficulties in their uppsears of study seeking support for the first time Appendix1 shows an increase of 5.% in undergradua5T8 Tw 12 -08 -1.22Td (1r4 0 Td mtc 0.00 170 (de

Fee Deferrals

Fee deferrals represent another important provision for students who lack the cash to pay tuition by the deadline. Students who do not haveoutstanding tuition or fees from a prior term may request the deferral of tuition and fees they will be receiving unding from the University governmentaid programs or external agencawards administered by McGillhis program

UNDERGRADUATE MERIT AWARDS

Renewable Entrance Scholarships

The major and prestige entranseholarships remain our most attractive awards. Based foremost on academic excellence combined with achievements and excellence combined with achievement and excellence combined with a chievement and excellence combined with a chieve chieve combined with a chieve chieve

Undergraduate Faculty/Department Awards

While entrance scholarships are an effective tool to attitue best students to McGill, incourse award, which are administered directly by faculties and department, recognize meritorious achievement during studies his category not only includes facultary ministered scholarships, prizes and convocation awards, but also stipends paid from reseage well as awards from granting agencies his complete pictures shown in Appendix 1, represents a total value of $8.39M across all funding sources enefiting $0.29 undergraduate students. This represents a similar funding level as the prior year but to 10% less recipients.
